

FITZROY COMMUNITY GARDENS

Rushall Garden is located in the Thomas Kidney Reserve on Rushall Crescent. (behind the grassy knoll opposite the end of Kneen St.) in North Fitzroy.

We enjoy growing our own fruit and vegetables using sustainable organic horticultural practices and foster the sharing and development of a diversity of gardening skills.

The North Fitzroy Community Gardens Group (NFCGG) is a non-profit organisation that formed in 1997, with the aim of establishing a community garden in North Fitzroy. The NFCGG proposed a garden with both individual allotments and space for communal gardening projects.

The NFCGG aims to enhance the sustainability of the North Fitzroy community by:

- respecting prior ownership of the land by Indigenous Australians;
- maintaining attractive urban space where people can grow plants predominantly for food and which is accessible to the local community to enjoy;
- promoting sustainable organic horticultural techniques;
- fostering the sharing and development of a diversity of gardening skills;
- managing the garden by consensus in an open, participatory and non-discriminatory manner.

Fitzroy Community Garden open this weekend

The Fitzroy Community Garden is at 125 Napier St, Fitzroy (on the grounds of the Atherton Gardens public housing estate) The garden received state government funding last year to make numerous improvements including the installation of a 10,000 litre water tank. You can learn more about local community gardens at Cultivating Community and find out the dates of more garden open days at Australia's open garden scheme

Northcote Community Gardens

Our Working Bees are usually held on the FIRST SUNDAY of the month, from 1.30 onwards. Sometimes this changes to fit in around Mothers/Fathers day etc. but the date for the next working bee will be put up on our notice board at the gardens.

We encourage anyone interested in the gardens to attend, as well as all our regular members and we generally bring a plate of food to share as well.
